

Skilling Queenslanders for Work

Kurbingui is funded by the Queensland State Government Department of Employment, Training and Small Business (DETSB) to deliver the Skilling Queenslanders for Work Program. Through this program, Kurbingui staff are able to provide opportunities for Aboriginal Torres Strait Islander job seekers to develop further skills and enter into the workforce.

The Skilling Queenslanders for Work staff provide culturally appropriate tailored support and assistance, which includes learner support, while participants undertake a nationally recognised qualification.

Aims and Objectives

Kurbingui and Skilling Queenslanders for Work objective is to provide the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community of North Brisbane and Moreton Bay areas with opportunities to receive services based on their needs and to bridge the gaps identified.

Overall, Kurbingui has continued to successfully provide the community with these and other opportunities to establish links and engagement while ensuring cultural networks and connections are maintained in a safe and culturally appropriate environment.

Support

Kurbingui Youth and Family Development work collaboratively with many partner agencies and organisations who engage with participant trainees to provide support services where required.

The services Kurbingui staff links trainees with are also committed to provide support and assistance with the aim of resolving any barriers to successful completion of the course and opportunities for employment.

Group sessions are included in the course work that cover issues such as Drug, Alcohol and Substance Education and Awareness, Healthy Relationships, Community Engagement and Event Support, Cultural Learning and Engagement and Course work with the partner RTOs.

Program Benefits

Through the support of Queensland State Government funding, Kurbingui is able to open new doors to skill development and create employment opportunities for local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community members. Local Elders and respected Aboriginal Torres Strait Islander Leaders within the community will also provide support and guidance to participants.
